

Excel Assignment #7

“Charting the Weather”

You will need to go to www.weather.com to get started on this assignment. You will need to type in a city and state of your choice at the top and go to the “Month” option on the right. You want to be able to find the highs and lows for the month of January 2010. You will need to have the dates of January 1 through January 31.

You should have two lines on your graph. One will be for the highs and one for the lows. Make sure the lines look a little different from each other. Also, make sure your assignment fits to one page, print, and hand in.

It should look similar to this:
